Art Unit: 1742

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 3-5 and 7-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gingerich et al. '240.

Gingerich et al. '240 discloses the invention substantially as claimed. Gingerich et al. '240 discloses a method of producing Co powder comprising:

- providing a Co containing material;
- dissolving the Co material in a solution comprising hydrochloric acid forming a cobalt chloride ion;
- removing all impurities from the solution; and

Art Unit: 1742

forming a Co powder.

Gingerich et al. '240 further discloses wherein the impurities include Cu.

Gingerich et al. '240 further discloses wherein the concentration of hydrochloric acid overlaps the range as claimed by Applicant establishing a prima facie case of obviousness.

Gingerich et al. '240 further discloses wherein the Co powder is formed by conventional methods, and further discloses wherein a gas is injected into the solution and the Co is reduced in a Co reduction step.

Gingerich et al. '240 is silent as to hydrogen reduction at elevated temperature, but such reduction is known as conventional in the art and would be selected as a method for use in the invention of Gingerich et al. '240.

4. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gingerich et al. '240 in view of Gingerich et al. '937.

Gingerich et al. '240 discloses the invention substantially as claimed (see paragraph 3 above). However, Gingerich et al. '240 does not disclose wherein the impurities further wherein the impurities further comprise Ag.

Gingerich et al. '937 teaches that impurities included in recycled Co material include Ag, and includes Ag in the process of acid leaching and precipitation.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to include Ag as an impurity that can be removed by the process of Gingerich et al. '240 as taught by Gingerich et al. '937.
